Honorable Richard Helms
Director of Central Intelligence
Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear Mr. Helms:

One of the objectives recommended to the President by the Federal Safety Council is to establish standard accident reporting requirements and to centrally collect, compile, and analyze Federal accident data for the purpose of planning and evaluating accident prevention programs. Accordingly, I am asking each department and agency in government to establish and maintain internal reporting procedures to use as the basis for programming action to reduce personal injuries and property damage within their own organizations.

The enclosed standard method of reporting and recording Federal civilian employee injuries is the first essential step toward establishing a Federal accident reporting system. Some of the larger agencies now have systems in operation. In the future, standard methods encompassing all accident problem areas, such as vehicle accidents and property damage, will be developed.

It is my sincere hope that each department and agency will do all in its power to use effectively standard accident data to strengthen their programs. It is my request that full cooperation be given the Department of Labor and the Federal Safety Council by furnishing on a quarterly basis heretofore unavailable data for government-wide purposes.

This effort can provide the groundwork for programs to reduce accidents and help achieve the goals of the Mission SAFETY-70 program initiated by President Johnson in 1965.

Sincerely,

Willard Wirtz
Secretary of Labor
